Dear Bill:

I spoke to you a while ago about a variety of potential uses of monoclonal antibodies.

[Redacted] had some interesting ideas on the subject.

STAT
STAT

It seemed important to tell you, or whoever you thought should hear them. [Redacted] is a very strong company in this field with a fine scientific staff. They are. I think worth listening to on the subject.

STAT

No one has called them, and I did not want to let the ideas get lost. Hence this reminder.

Cordially

MEMORANDUM FOR: Director of Scientific and Weapons Research

FROM: Director of Central Intelligence

SUBJECT: Letter from [redacted]

STAT

1. [redacted] is a highly competent scientist and technical entrepreneur. She called a while ago to say that there are some uses for monoclonal antibodies which she believes to be in our national security interest to know about and understand. She suggested that we have somebody versed in this subject talk to [redacted] mentioning the attached letter, who would be glad to provide information of any value to us. 25X1

2. Will you please see that somebody competent to discuss this subject follows up on this carefully.

William F. Casey
